1. Purpose and governing documents

These rules provide a controlled exception process for students whose attendance falls short of the minimum in SPIT-ACA-ATT-2026-27-001 because of a documented and exceptional circumstance. They are synthetic research material only and do not describe actual SPIT regulations.

The rules apply to regular undergraduate and postgraduate courses for Academic Year 2026-27. They must be read with the Attendance Policy (2026-27), Examination Registration Guidelines and Revised Attendance

Circular (2026-27). The circular creates a limited deemed-attendance route for qualifying institutional duty; such credits are not condonation and must not be counted again as condoned absence.

Condonation is discretionary. Meeting the numerical range makes a student eligible to apply; it does not create an entitlement to approval. A decision must consider the evidence, duration, relevance to the missed sessions, academic record and whether the application is complete and timely.

2. Key definitions

| Term | Definition for these rules |
|---|---|
| Eligible shortage range | A final raw attendance percentage within the range in Section 3, before condonation. |
| Non-condonable floor | A percentage below which no condonation may be granted under these rules. |
| Adjustment | A limited eligibility-only percentage-point allowance approved by the competent authority. |
| Exceptional circumstance | An event beyond the student's reasonable control that materially prevented attendance and is supported by credible evidence. |
| Qualifying institutional duty | A formally authorised duty that meets SPIT-ACA-CIR-2026-27-003; it is handled as deemed attendance credit, not as a condonation claim. |
| Consolidated application | One application per student per semester listing all affected courses and components for the same or related events. |

3. Numerical eligibility and limits

| Component | Required minimum | Application range before adjustment | Non-condonable floor | Maximum adjustment |
|---|---|---|---|---|
| Theory | 75% | 65.00% to 74.99% | Below 65.00% | Up to 10 percentage points |
| Practical / laboratory / studio / field | 80% | 70.00% to 79.99% | Below 70.00% | Up to 10 percentage points |

A student must be within the applicable application range for each component for which condonation is requested. A student at exactly 65.00% in theory or exactly 70.00% in practical may apply. A student at 64.99% in theory or 69.99% in practical is below the non-condonable floor and cannot be made eligible by this process.

The maximum adjustment is ten percentage points and cannot exceed the number of missed held sessions attributable to approved exceptional circumstances, expressed against the relevant denominator. The adjusted percentage must meet the component minimum. For example, a theory component at 72% needs at least three percentage points to reach 75%; a practical component at 74% needs at least six percentage points to reach 80%.

Condonation may not increase a component by more than ten percentage points or treat more than 10% of the held sessions in that component as condoned. The same missed session cannot be counted twice. A student who is short in both theory and practical must satisfy the application range and adjustment test separately for both components.

The raw attendance figure remains unchanged in the register. The portal displays raw attendance and, separately, the approved condonation adjustment and the resulting examination eligibility status. Condonation must never be entered as ordinary "present" attendance.

4. Circumstances that may be considered

| Category | Examples of acceptable supporting evidence | Notes |
|---|---|---|
| Serious illness or injury | Certificate from a registered medical practitioner; hospital record; discharge summary; test or treatment record where relevant. | Evidence should cover dates or a period reasonably connected to the missed sessions. Routine consultation alone may not establish inability to attend. |
| Hospitalisation or emergency treatment | Admission and discharge documents; emergency department record; treating clinician statement. | A representative may submit initial notice if the student is hospitalised. |
| Bereavement or urgent family emergency | Official death record or other credible record; a short written explanation of relationship and dates. | The committee may request only information necessary to assess the claim. |
| Official institutional representation | Duty order, approved roster, event schedule and completion confirmation. | From 01 Jan 2027, qualifying duties are handled under the circular as deemed attendance credit, not condonation. Earlier non-qualifying duties may be considered as exceptional absence. |
| Disability-related or accessibility emergency | Relevant support-office communication or professional documentation, limited to what is necessary. | The committee should consider reasonable privacy and accessibility needs. |
| Severe transport or local disruption | Official disruption notice, public authority alert or other independent record. | Ordinary commute delay or a single missed bus is insufficient by itself. |

The Committee may consider another circumstance of comparable seriousness where the student demonstrates that attendance was materially prevented, the dates are verifiable and the absence was not reasonably avoidable. Acceptance of one category does not guarantee acceptance of another case.

5. Circumstances normally not accepted

The following ordinarily do not qualify by themselves: personal travel; tourism; family functions planned in advance; routine employment or internship shifts; private coaching; non-institutional competitions; club or society events without an authorised duty order; oversleeping; ordinary traffic or routine commuting difficulty; incomplete preparation; examination anxiety without supporting clinical evidence; or a general statement that the student was busy.

A student cannot create an exception by securing a certificate after the fact that does not relate to the missed dates. A document that verifies a diagnosis but does not reasonably establish inability to attend may be insufficient. The Committee may verify documents with the issuing entity through an authorised process.

False, altered or misleading evidence results in rejection and may be referred to the appropriate student-conduct authority. A student is responsible for checking that uploaded pages are legible and complete.

6. Application timeline and required documents

The student must file one consolidated application for the semester through the attendance portal within ten working days after returning to classes or, where the student has not returned, within ten working days after the relevant event ends. For hospitalisation, the ten-working-day period runs from discharge. Where several events occur in one semester, the student should list each event and the affected dates in the same application when practicable.

If supporting evidence is not available by the deadline for a reason beyond the student's control, the student may submit the application with available proof and request up to five additional working days to complete the evidence. The request must explain what document is pending and when it is expected. The additional period is not automatic.

| Required item | Minimum content |
|---|---|
| Student and course details | Student number, programme, semester, course codes, component names and contact details. |
| Absence schedule | Date, period/session, course, component and reason for each claimed absence. |
| Circumstance statement | Brief factual account, event dates, how the event prevented attendance and steps taken to notify the department. |
| Evidence | Documents relevant to the category in Section 4, with issuer, date and period covered. |
| Declaration | Confirmation that the submission is complete and genuine, with consent for limited verification. |
| Department review | Instructor or course coordinator confirmation of held sessions and attendance record; HoD recommendation. |

An incomplete application may be returned once for correction. The student receives three working days to supply the missing administrative item. This correction window does not extend the underlying ten-working-day filing deadline unless the Committee records an exception.

7. Review authority and decision workflow

| Stage | Owner | Expected time |
|---|---|---|
| 1. Submission | Student | Within the filing deadline in Section 6. |
| 2. Record verification | Course instructor / course coordinator | Within three working days of a complete application. |
| 3. Department recommendation | Head of Department | Within two working days after verification. |
| 4. Committee assessment | Attendance Review Committee | Normally within five working days after receiving the department recommendation. |
| 5. Decision entry | Attendance and Timetable Cell | Within two working days after the decision. |
| 6. Student notification | Attendance portal | Automatic or email notice showing approved, partially approved or rejected status. |

The synthetic Attendance Review Committee consists of the Dean (Academics) or nominee as chair, one HoD not belonging to the student's department, and the Attendance and Timetable Cell coordinator as member-secretary. A member with a direct conflict must disclose it and abstain from that case.

The Committee may approve the full amount requested, approve a smaller adjustment, return the case for specific evidence or reject the request. Each decision must record the course/component, raw attendance, approved percentage-point adjustment, final eligibility status, evidence relied on and concise reasons.

A decision should be made within ten working days of a complete departmental referral. If verification is delayed, the student must be told what is pending. The target is administrative and does not imply automatic approval if the target is missed.

8. Appeals and review

A student may seek one review of a rejection or partial approval within five working days after the decision notice. A review must identify a factual or procedural error, or provide material evidence that could not reasonably have been submitted earlier. A request that merely repeats the original explanation without new information may be closed without a fresh hearing.

The Dean (Academics), or a designated senior academic officer who did not participate in the original decision, reviews the appeal. The review decision is final within this synthetic administrative process. An appeal does not suspend the examination registration deadline; the student must follow the Examination Registration Guidelines and monitor the portal status.

9. Special rules for institutional duty after 01 January 2027

SPIT-ACA-CIR-2026-27-003 introduces deemed attendance credit for narrowly defined institutional duty from 01 January 2027. A duty qualifies only when approved in writing by the Dean (Academics), HoD or designated event authority before the event, except that a documented emergency approval may be recorded within two working days after the event.

The duty must appear on an official roster, overlap a scheduled session, be completed by the student and be confirmed by the responsible event coordinator. Credit is limited to five academic days and no more than 10% of the held sessions in the affected course component during the semester. It applies only to the specific sessions that overlap the duty.

No deemed attendance credit is available for an examination, in-class test, mandatory safety demonstration, practical competency assessment or session where physical participation is an essential assessed outcome. The instructor must provide a reasonable make-up opportunity where the course permits; the missed assessment itself is not converted into attendance.

A qualifying duty credit is entered in the attendance portal as “DA - Deemed Attendance” and included in the numerator. It is not a condonation adjustment and must not be counted against the ten-percentage-point condonation cap. A duty that fails the circular’s conditions may be considered as ordinary exceptional absence only if all condonation requirements are independently met.

10. Records, privacy and administration

Medical and other sensitive evidence must be accessible only to the Committee, designated department reviewer and authorised records staff. The portal should display the decision and category without exposing unnecessary medical detail to teaching staff or other students.

Application and decision records are retained for three academic years after the semester, subject to any active dispute or audit hold. Audit records must identify who accessed, changed or approved an entry. The Attendance and Timetable Cell administers these rules; the Dean (Academics) is the policy owner.

No department, instructor or student representative may independently promise condonation. Only the authority named in Section 7 may approve an adjustment. Any local instruction inconsistent with these rules is invalid unless issued as a formally approved amendment.
