1. Scope and authority

These synthetic guidelines apply to regular end-semester theory, practical, project, viva and other credit-bearing examinations administered by the Office of the Controller of Examinations during Academic Year 2026-27. They are generated solely for a research knowledge base and must not be represented as actual SPIT examination rules.

The Controller of Examinations administers registration and examination records. Academic attendance eligibility is determined by the Office of the Dean (Academics) under SPIT-ACA-ATT-2026-27-001, as amended by SPIT-ACA-CIR-2026-27-003, and by SPIT-ACA-CND-2026-27-001. These guidelines do not independently change attendance thresholds or approve condonation.

A later attendance circular controls attendance calculations where it expressly amends the attendance policy. Examination form dates, fee amounts and examination procedures remain governed by this document unless a separate examination notice formally amends them.

2. Registration principles

Every student intending to appear for an examination must submit an examination form for the relevant semester and select each course or component for which the student seeks registration. Course registration in the academic portal does not by itself complete examination registration.

Registration is course-specific. A student may be permitted to register for courses in which the student is eligible while another course remains withheld because of an attendance, fee, academic or disciplinary block. A payment receipt does not prove attendance eligibility and does not guarantee an admit card.

The examination portal uses the official student record, registered course list, fee ledger, attendance eligibility statement and any approved condonation or deemed-attendance credit. Students must not submit duplicate forms to attempt to bypass a system block.

3. Examination calendar and registration windows

Examination session	Regular registration window	Late registration window	Indicative examination period
Odd Semester 2026	02 Nov 2026, 09:00 to 09 Nov 2026, 23:59	10 Nov 2026, 09:00 to 12 Nov 2026, 23:59	01 Dec 2026 to 15 Dec 2026
Even Semester 2027	01 Mar 2027, 09:00 to 08 Mar 2027, 23:59	09 Mar 2027, 09:00 to 11 Mar 2027, 23:59	03 May 2027 to 18 May 2027

All times are India Standard Time (IST). The portal closes automatically at the stated time. Students should not wait until the final hour because bank confirmation, browser errors or incomplete uploads may prevent successful submission. A saved draft is not a submitted form.

The late window is available only to students who can complete the ordinary eligibility and payment checks. The late window does not reopen a course for a student who is ineligible on attendance or another academic ground. A student who misses both windows must wait for a separately notified opportunity, if any; no individual late registration is promised.

The indicative examination period may be refined in the final timetable. The Controller of Examinations publishes the course-wise timetable separately. An indicative period is not a guarantee of a particular date, session or venue.

4. Registration fee and payment

Item	Synthetic amount	Charging basis
Theory examination	INR 1,200	Per registered theory paper.
Practical / laboratory examination	INR 1,500	Per registered practical paper or separately registered practical component.
Project / viva examination	INR 1,500	Per registered project or viva component.

Item	Synthetic amount	Charging basis
Late processing charge	INR 500	One charge per student application submitted during the late window, in addition to paper fees.
Duplicate admit-card printout	INR 100	Only where a physical duplicate is requested after online download.

These amounts are fictional and exist only to make the synthetic corpus testable. They are not actual SPIT fees, payment instructions or a statement of current charges.

Payment must be made through the payment methods displayed in the synthetic portal. Students should retain the transaction reference and downloadable receipt. A pending transaction is not treated as paid until the payment gateway confirms settlement. If money is debited but the portal shows pending, the student should raise a payment ticket with the transaction ID and should not immediately pay a second time.

A fee waiver, scholarship or reimbursement does not automatically update the examination ledger. The student must ensure that the authorised finance entry is visible before the registration deadline. Refunds are considered only for duplicate or failed transactions, or where an examination is cancelled by the institution; the ordinary fee is not refundable merely because a student later becomes ineligible.

5. How to submit the examination form

Step 1 - Sign in: use the student portal account and verify the displayed name, student number, programme and semester. If the profile is incorrect, stop and raise a student-record ticket before submitting the form.

Step 2 - Select courses: review the list of registered courses and select each course or component for which examination registration is sought. Do not select an unregistered elective or a course not appearing in the semester record.

Step 3 - Review eligibility: inspect the eligibility indicator for each course. The portal may show Eligible, Provisional, Withheld or Action Required. A Provisional status means the final attendance or administrative verification is pending; it is not a guarantee of eligibility.

Step 4 - Verify fees: check the number and type of papers, the calculated amount and any late charge. Report an incorrect paper classification before payment.

Step 5 - Pay and submit: complete payment, return to the portal, verify the settlement status and select Submit Final Form. Download the confirmation page and receipt. The form is complete only when a registration reference number is generated.

Step 6 - Recheck: return to the portal after submission and confirm that every intended course displays Submitted or Registered. A screenshot of an unsubmitted cart is not proof of registration.

6. Attendance eligibility and snapshot

The attendance thresholds are set by the current Attendance Policy: 75% for theory and 80% for practical components. For a course with both components, both thresholds must be satisfied separately. The old 2024-25 practical threshold of 75% is not applicable to 2026-27.

The department issues a provisional attendance warning before the final teaching week where practicable. The final attendance eligibility snapshot is prepared no earlier than seven calendar days before the first examination in the relevant course, after the scheduled teaching sessions for that course have concluded. The department certifies the result and sends it to the examination portal.

The snapshot includes raw attendance, authorised deemed-attendance credits under SPIT-ACA-CIR-2026-27-003 and any approved condonation under SPIT-ACA-CND-2026-27-001. A deemed credit is counted in the attendance numerator. A condonation adjustment is displayed separately and does not rewrite the raw attendance register.

Where a student has filed a timely attendance correction or condonation review and the decision is still pending at the snapshot stage, the portal may display Provisional. The student must continue to meet the registration deadline. The department should transmit the decision as soon as it is made. A pending application does not itself create permission to sit the examination.

If the final result is below the applicable threshold and no condonation is approved, the course is marked Withheld. A student may still register for other eligible courses. The examination office cannot override the academic attendance decision except to correct a verified data-transfer or identity error.

7. Form correction and student support

A student may correct course selection, spelling of a displayed examination component or an uploaded document during the correction window published on the portal. For the Odd Semester 2026 session, the correction window is 10-12 November 2026. For the Even Semester 2027 session, it is 09-11 March 2027. Corrections requiring a change to the official course registration record must be approved by the Academic Office before the examination portal can accept them.

For a payment mismatch, raise a ticket with the transaction reference. For a course missing from the list, contact the department office. For attendance, use the Attendance Policy correction route; do not file an examination ticket as a substitute. For a condonation decision, contact the Attendance Review Committee Secretariat.

Support tickets should include the student number, examination session, course code, a concise description and a screenshot or receipt where relevant. Students should not include passwords, one-time passcodes or full card details.

8. Admit card and final eligibility

The portal is expected to publish the admit card at least three calendar days before the first examination date for the student. The admit card lists registered courses, examination dates, reporting times and permitted venue information. Students must review it immediately and report a mismatch before the first examination.

An admit card is generated only for courses with final Registered or Eligible status and cleared payment. A provisional or withheld course may be omitted. Possession of an admit card does not authorise a student to appear in a course that is subsequently marked withheld following a verified final eligibility decision.

Students must carry the admit card and the synthetic institute identity card to the examination venue. A digital copy may be accepted only where the final examination notice expressly permits it. The student should arrive at least 30 minutes before the reporting time and follow the invigilator’s instructions.

9. Examination-day rules and absence

Students must sit only in the assigned room and seat, present identification when requested and use only materials permitted for the paper. Mobile phones, smart watches, unauthorised notes and communication devices must be stored as instructed by the invigilator. Any suspected malpractice is handled under the separate synthetic examination conduct procedure, which is outside the scope of this document.

A student who misses an examination must report the reason through the examination support portal within two working days, attaching supporting documents. Reporting an absence does not automatically grant a make-up examination, re-test or fee refund. Any supplementary examination opportunity is subject to a separate notice.

Medical or personal circumstances affecting attendance before the examination are handled under the Attendance Condonation Rules. A medical document submitted after a missed examination does not retroactively register the student or guarantee a re-test.

10. Important distinctions and version control

Examination registration and attendance eligibility are separate controls. Registration is the student's act of selecting courses and paying applicable fees. Attendance eligibility is an academic determination. A successful payment cannot cure an attendance shortage; an approved condonation or deemed credit does not by itself submit the examination form.

This document is Version 1.0, published and effective 20 October 2026. It uses the base Attendance Policy 2026-27 and recognises the Revised Attendance Circular effective 01 January 2027 for later examination snapshots. The circular does not change the examination registration windows or the fictional fee schedule in this guideline.

If a later examination notice changes a date or fee, that notice must identify the provision amended and its effective session. Unless formally changed, the windows and amounts in Sections 3 and 4 remain the synthetic reference values for this corpus.
